

WE GROW MONEY

The 17th century TulipMania of the Dutch Golden Age valued the newly introduced tulip bulbs in such delusional state that finally led to its market collapse. The speculative bulbs turned economic bubble. Tulip as commodity, money grows off the soil. Garlic as credito, the growth multiplied.. In this chapter "WE GROW MONEY", we focus on artists and cultural workers' intervention of established currency system. Print your own money, spend it, money grows money.

WE EAT MONEY

In calm times and in times of economic crisis, systems of exchange replaces payment methods. To acquire basic food supplies and living essentials, produces, skills, labors, time floats in self-sustainable change systems. In this chapter, 'WE EAT MONEY", we introduce Mercados de trueque (barter markets) in 1990's Argentina, community run sharing depots in Greece and Spain, self-managed co-op communes, self-regulated gift economies.

WE SHIT MONEY

From dotcom boom to crash, from electronic finance to today's bitcoin-mania, the internet / network technology pre-empt the global money system on liquidation. In this chapter "WE SHIT MONEY", we review and preview the fluctuation of exchange rate between actual and virtual, country and continent, and EURO against ALL..

mcd
Magazine des Cultures Digitales

<http://www.digitalmcd.com/>

December2014 edition
Guest editor: Shu Lea Cheang
Editorial advisor: Annick Rivoire